ST CECILIA
(circa 200 –230)
Feast: 22nd November

Cecilia's sanctity came not from the incredible works she achieved but because of how close she kept to Christ. She simply loved Jesus and wanted others to love him too. The world tells us to value positions and titles, and to feel wronged when we do not receive what we feel we are owed. St. Cecilia, and the many holy men and women who came before and after her, knew better. She did not ask what opportunities the Church could offer her. She asked God how she could serve his Church, and she poured out her very life answering his call.

FROM THE FATHERS

The Nearness Of Wars

Perhaps you are anxious, brothers and sisters, at the fact that we hear constantly of the tumult of wars and the onsets of battles. Perhaps your love is still more anxious since these are taking place in our times. The reason is the closer we are to the destruction of the world, the closer we are to the kingdom of the Saviour. The Lord himself says, "In the last days nation will rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom. When you see wars, earthquakes and families, know that the kingdom of God is at hand." This nearness of wars shows us that Christ is near.

Maximus of Turin (d. 408/423)

The Faithful Christian Recognised By Belief In Resurrection Of The Body

We should have no doubt that our mortal flesh also will raise again at the end of the world ... This is the Christian faith. This is the Catholic faith. This is the apostolic faith. Believe Christ when he says, "Not a hair of your head shall perish." Putting aside all unbelief, consider how valuable you are. How can our Redeemer despise any person when he cannot despise a hair of that person's head? How are we going to doubt that he intends to give eternal life to our soul and body? He took on a soul and body in which to die for us when he died, and which he took up again that we might not fear death.

St Augustine of Hippo (354—430)
